Sense of God's call I believe we are called to embody God's love for the world in every possible aspect of life. I believe we are called to embody God's love as individuals in our everyday life; and that we are called together in congregations (communities of individuals and households); and that we are called together in collections of congregations locally and regionally and nationally and globally, because those different configurations are able to embody God's love for the world in different, and equally important, ways. I believe that the work which our denomination is able to do is important, and I believe my voice in that forum will be valuable.
